Alumni President's Message

Dear Friends:

As I reflect back, two years ago I was apprehensive about the task of writing this column. The two years have been an enriching time and will soon be over.

Your voice has been listened to on numerous committee and board meetings. The renovation project on Lynn Wood Hall is one example of alumni wishes being acted on. I have become aware of the dedication and care the board members share as items are being discussed and voted on. There are many exciting things that are being dicussed by the strategic planning committee that lead to the school's future.

I have been to several events this year when people came up to me and shared the comment that their children enjoyed the spiritual atmosphere on the campus. This delights me as I feel that a spiritual atmosphere is the main thing that we can have over any other school.

The college faces many challenges in the future and each one of us needs to remember the administrators in our prayers and give support in any way that we can.

The alumni officers are looking forward to seeing you at Alumni Homecoming, October 30 to November 1. There are continuing education courses planned on Friday, along with several classes for young people which are a new addition this year.

We plan to have another outstanding talent program on Saturday evening. As usual it will be a jam packed weekend of social and spiritual renewal.

Thank you for your trust and support the past two years.

Robert A. Lorren

Lynn Wood Hall: A Survivor

Because a significant number of alumni have voted with their checkbooks, restoration of Lynn Wood Hall is already under way.

On May 1 the Board of Trustees voted that restoration could proceed if the alumni came up with $250,000 cash for the project by August 1 and pledges for another $100,000. Trustees emphasized that Lynn Wood Hall dollars would not be coming out of school funds.

"As of July 31 the terms set by the board are met," reports William H. Taylor, chairman of the restoration committee. At the same time he stresses that pledges and gifts are still welcome. "The Alumni Association, in undertaking this project, wants to also help fund maintenance," says Mr. Taylor.

One major boost came when Committee of 100 for SMC, Inc., executives voted $100,000 to refurbish the Lynn Wood Hall chapel.

Contractor for the work is David C. Turner, a former SC faculty member.

Southern College Cuts Tuition

by Jerry Kovalski

Tuition for full-time students at Southern in 1987-88 will be lower than last year. This resists a national trend toward 5 to 7 percent increases.

Students taking 16 hours of classes for both semesters will pay $5,500 for classes, $284 less than last year.

An informal telephone survey on May 28 showed this to be the very lowest of tuition charges among Adventist undergraduate schools in the United States except for Oakwood College. Tuition rates elsewhere will range from $5,592 at Southwestern Adventist College to $8,160 at Loma Linda University (undergraduate). Other representative figures are $6,380 at Union College and $6,688 at Columbia Union College.

The new tuition rates, voted by the SC Board of Trustees, bracket tuition so that enrolling for 12-16 semester hours costs $2,750. This cuts the cost for those taking 15 or 16 hours per semester but increases it somewhat for those taking only 12, 13, or 14 hours. This move spreads fixed costs more equitably.

Students in the 1-11 semester hour bracket will be charged $230 per semester hour. Those taking 17 or more hours will pay $175 per semester hour.

Seniors graduating in December or next May who need less than a full class load to complete their degree will not be put at a disadvantage, indicated President Don Sahly. Plans are being worked out so that their lighter loads will not be a financial handicap.

Including meals, lodging, and books, the estimated total bill for a full-time resident student is $8,386 for the 1987-88 school year. This reflects average meal costs of $175 per month, rather than the $75 minimum board charge. Here again, when it comes to a year's student budget the price tag at Southern is low.

"Other Adventist colleges are increasing their tuition by four and one-half to six percent next year. Southern College is the only one actually reducing its tuition for full-time students," says Dr. Sahly.

"Baccalaureate graduates from any college who want to take another major, enter a pre-professional program, or refresh their skills here can still qualify for half-price tuition," added Dr. Sahly. "We also have senior citizens coming back for classes, and they pay $30 per semester hour for credit or $15 for audit."

Published cost predictions for attending the average private college next year are $11,800, and for the average public college, $5,900.

Strategic planning now under way at Southern College includes exploring ways to cut operating costs to further reduce tuition while continuing to build quality into every degree granted. ■

A Student Looks at Costs

Southern College was out of the question! I didn't even consider the option because my family just couldn't afford it.

This fall I will enroll at Southern for my third year. (And my family still can't afford it!)

Recruiters from the college visited with my senior class and our parents before we graduated. During the financial aid presentation, both my mother and I realized that attending Southern College was not as impossible as it had seemed. Scholarships were offered for academic achievement. Grants and loans based on financial need were available. And any student willing to work could contribute to paying those "hopeless" bills that suddenly weren't so frightening. I found that the total cost for a year at Southern could be substantially offset for a person like me.

I heard from a reliable source that over three quarters of last year's students received financial aid through federal, state, institutional, and/or private funds. By completing a financial need analysis (a form available at the SC Financial Aid Office), a family can find out exactly how much it can reasonably afford toward college bills. A lot of middle-income families have been surprised to learn that they were eligible for some assistance.

In the last 21 years, more than fifteen thousand students have received aid through the Financial Aid Office directed by Laurel Wells. And over a million dollars is earned each year by students through the campus labor program. To be sure that about $2,500 of that million is credited to my account this year, I came back to campus in July to begin working.

If I was attending just any college, I would still be furthering my career, but I've found more than education at Southern College. Work opportunites, Christian friends, and dedicated staff and teachers have taught me more than I could ever learn by just attending class.

Christian education is expensive, and most people feel they can't afford it. But financial aid and work are opening the way for me. I thought it couldn't be done, but here I am. Now that my financial aid package is completed, I can't wait for this school year to begin!

SC Graduates Go Far

Education a Family Affair, A Faith Adventure for Kisers

"I had never laid eyes on the place," says Jerry Kiser, 45, as he describes coming to Collegedale with his family three years ago. He had grown up in Virginia, and did not become a Seventh-day Adventist until a year after marrying Joni.

By this spring he had completed two majors (history and communications) and Joni had survived student teaching to graduate with him. Young Martin, 12, had finished up 5th grade, well motivated toward his goal of becoming a marine biologist. Bright-eyed Sera, 9, had sailed through the first four grades at Spalding Elementary.

What's it like for a family of four to go to school together? "This has been the rat race to the max," admits Joni.

"It's been so long, I don't remember what normal is," interjects Jerry.

"I promise to start cooking again. I promise," Joni responds.

They wouldn't advise just any married couple to do what they have done. They emphasize that it has required dedication and definite priorities. They clung to their seven-year goal to return to school and prepare for mission service.

"We have sacrificed a lot—the kids have, too—but they have done it happily. We are committed to Christian education. The Lord has blessed us and stretched our finances," offers Joni.

If one of the children needed $2 for something at school, it sometimes took dad's last fifty cents, a general house search, and a foray to the kids' piggy banks to meet the crisis.

Sera almost lost a finger recently in a door accident, and she was crying as her mother drove from the doctor's office. Her mother discovered that pain was not the cause. "You and daddy have both been going to school, and now my finger's going to cost $20!" was her concern.

Jerry had completed 22 years in the military so the GI Bill helped him with school expenses.

It took hard work, too. A phenomenal amount of it. Joni worked in Student Accounts, full time until January when she began a semester of student teaching. Along with working full time, she took 16 hours of classwork for two consecutive semesters and earned 52 hours in the past two years. This included challenging a couple of classes and taking nine hours from Home Study International to fill gaps in her classwork taken at five colleges over the years.

Jerry's military training in communications (with Armed Forces Radio and Television Service) gained him a bit more than a semester of credit, and he came with about a semester of credit earned in Texas. While completing two majors in three years, he worked at McKee Baking Company—full time during his final semester.

Joni Kiser gives her husband, Jerry, a hand with his mortarboard.

A milestone reached, Joni and Jerry Kiser completed college together May 3. Their children, Sera and Martin, are ready for fifth and sixth grades. The next educational setting for the entire family is a mission school in Micronesia.

"You pay your tithe—that's your business—and then it's the Lord's business to take care of you," is the way Joni puts it. "Give Him more than He asks, and He'll give you more than you ask."

"We're nearly debt-free and will have our minor loan paid in six months," she predicts. In January they borrowed $1600 to cover tuition while Joni was student teaching and couldn't work full time.

If coming to Collegedale was an adventure in faith, it's just a preamble to more adventure. The Kisers flew in July to Pohnpei, one of the Eastern Carolina Islands of Micronesia, 800 miles from New Guinea and 800 miles from Guam.

Jerry will be teaching history at an SDA mission school with 450 day students in K-12. Joni's talents will be used in the classroom, too, or as registrar and accountant. The children spoke eagerly of the move. The chance to explore sea life especially appeals to Martin.

With anticipation, their parents mentioned an enriched quality of family life and diminished peer pressure. But they came close to settling for a much shorter move.

By mid-April, their dreams of mission service stalled by no firm job offer overseas, they explored a teaching situation at a church school in the Southern Union. On a weekend away from campus, they visited, liked it, and began checking on housing.

Monday morning back in Collegedale, knowing a phone call from the educational superintendent was imminent, they decided to accept the Georgia job.

"Lord, if you don't want us to go, you will have to hit us over the head pretty hard," Jerry prayed. He was just talking with Joni about this when the phone rang. But it was not the caller they expected. Rather it was from 15 time zones away, from a little Pacific island. "Forget the Georgia call," mouthed Jerry to Joni.

So, in the great tradition of Paul's missionary journeys and scores of Southern graduates, the Kisers have gone far from their country to share the Good News.

"We feel it's where we belong," is Jerry and Joni's shared opinion. ■

Alumna Kilgore Becomes Centenarian

Rochelle Philmon Kilgore

She was five years old when Southern College had its beginning. Rochelle Philmon Kilgore, SC's oldest alumnus, celebrated her 100th birthday on July 25.

An amazing person, Mrs. Kilgore has served her church for 75 years. Though she belongs to Southern (lists show her as the only graduate of 1904!), she also belongs to Union College (where she earned a bachelor's degree and subsequently taught) and to Atlantic Union College (to which she has given the last half of her life). The South lays first claim to her, however, for she was born in Georgia.

In 1904 this college was still in its Graysville infancy, as Southern Training School. It was not until 1916 that the school moved some thirty miles to its present location at the foot of White Oak Mountain. So it was to Graysville she went as a student in her teens, and it was there she began her teaching career. For 12 years she taught here in Tennessee, years which spanned the move of the school.

"I well remember that time and how everything, even the cows, were taken south across the Tennessee River," she recalls.

After a period of time in Nebraska and Georgia, she moved to New England with her minister husband, Charles L. Kilgore, then an Atlantic Union Conference officer. Her teaching at AUC began in 1936. Students flocked to her American literature classes. She recalls one year when the class moved to the college chapel for reason of space. Students by the busload explored literary locales of New England with her.

Bits of humor and interesting anecdotes livened her lectures. For the student whose attention dared wander, a daily quotation written on the chalkboard could stimulate new thought.

She is singularly celebrated as AUC's only honorary doctoral recipient. At 75 she became a professor emerita. Whether gardening, walking to the post office, or sitting in chapel, she has continued to use her time as one of her talents.

Her influence goes far beyond her English classroom. For 25 consecutive years she traveled to Germany for the annual SDA Servicemen's Retreat to talk with "the boys in uniform" about their future and how an Adventist college could brighten it. Extensive correspondence kept her in touch with hundreds of them. Over the past 35 years, 85 students have lived in her small Massachusetts house near the college.

Always forward-looking, Mrs. Kilgore has followed graduates with the same interest she has had for students. The personal founder of 19 AUC alumni chapters and a prolific letter-writer, she still garners news for a biannual newsletter from the 400-plus AUC alumni who graduated at least 50 years ago.

She rates as an ideal alumnus herself. Her interest in Southern College has never worn thin. Nobody seems to know how many times she has returned to Collegedale for homecoming, but two out of the last five isn't bad when you're almost a century old. She hopes to return to Collegedale again this October.

Looking back over the past ten decades, Mrs. Kilgore says, "God is good." ■

Five Southern Scholars

Spring Commencement Held For 174 Successful Seniors

Spring graduation services were held the first weekend in May, with 174 seniors receiving diplomas.

Of the seniors, 12 came from seven foreign countries, and those from the U.S. represented 26 states.

An additional 107 seniors graduated last December, making a total of 281 for the academic year.

"The Quest," was the consecration address given by Robert S. Folkenberg, board member and president, Carolina Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. His son, Robert, Jr., as class pastor, responded on behalf of the class. Dr. Benjamin F. Reaves, president of Oakwood College, in Huntsville, Ala., presented "The Power to See It Through," at Sabbath's baccalaureate service.

Speaker for the Senior Nurses' Pinning Service on Sabbath evening was Dr. Jack Facundus, pediatrician and father of a graduating nurse.

Dr. Douglas Devnich, director of public affairs for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada, presented "Two Components of Moral Excellence," for the Sunday morning commencement address. Degrees were conferred by Board Chairman A. C. McClure; Miss Mary Elam, director of records; and President Donald R. Sahly. Special recognition was given to the five Southern Scholars.

Students graduating summa cum laude (GPA 3.90 or higher) included: Karen Artress, Kerry Friesen, Shandelle Henson, and Bob Murdoch.

Magna cum laude graduates included: Michael Battistone, Judy Henderson Bleuer, Deborah Fanselau, James Gulley, Anthony Minear, Juan Narvaez, Kirk Wilcox, Katherine Chaij, NaLonna Lea, and Clarence Myers. Their GPAs were above 3.75. In addition 25 cum laude graduates had GPAs above 3.50. ■

Bennett Named to E. G. White Chair in Religion

Appointment of Dr. Douglas Bennett to the Ellen G. White Memorial Chair in Religion was announced at commencement excercises, May 3.

The endowed chair, established in June 1986 by anonymous gifts, now totals more than half a million dollars. In addition to funding a professorship, the chair underwrites quarterly publication of papers by the Division of Religion which are of interest to the church at large, says Dr. Gordon Hyde, chairman of the Department of Religion.

Dr. Bennett, who has taught continuously at SC for the past 26 years, earned a Ph.D. in rhetoric and communication from Bowling Green University in 1973. He also holds M.A. and B.D. degrees, both from Andrews University. Completing his undergraduate degree at Southern College in 1951, he then, for the next ten years, pastored in Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama.

Dr. Bennett's wife is the former Nell Sanders. They have two daughters, Cynthia Spears and Judy Kendrick.

Last November an inaugural lectureship was held for the Ellen G. White Memorial Chair in Religion. Dr. Gerhard Hasel, dean of the Theological Seminary at Andrews University, gave concurrent series of lectures on "Christian Living in a Secular World" and "The Bible Today."

Die Meistersinger Tour Includes Churches in Soviet Union

by Tina Frist

Southern's Die Meistersinger male chorus was well received by people in the Soviet Union and Poland during their three-week concert tour in May.

"Our main emphasis was to establish people-to-people contacts," said Dr. Marvin Robertson, director of the group and chairman of Southern's music department.

The traveling group of 35 included 27 male singers; accompanist Karen Larsen; Holly Holweger, soloist; Director Robertson and his wife; the wife of one singer; and three other chaperones. Members experienced travel by air, rail, water, and road.

Six performances for capacity crowds in Seventh-day Adventist churches were given by Die Meistersinger in addition to six other official concerts in well-kept cathedrals, cultural halls, and music conservatories. Several impromptu renditions were also given by the group on five or six occasions.

Dr. Robertson noticed significant changes in comparing this year's visit to the chorus' visit five years ago to Romania and the U.S.S.R. In 1982 they were advised not to make contact with fellow church members. This year the Russian government arranged the performances in Adventist churches.

Chorus member John Haynes said that singing in the SDA churches was the highlight of the trip for him. "We would see people in the audience, and they would smile. They acted as if they knew what we were singing." The group received flowers from the Russians after their church performances.

Glasnost—Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev's strategy calling for openness, candor, and publicity—appeared to be having an effect. Die Meistersinger is one of only a few Western groups to have performed in Rostov, only a river away from Asia. The audience there consisted of 300 church members. Apparently they were also the first choir from outside the U.S.S.R. ever to sing in the church at L'vov.

Both sacred and secular numbers composed the group's 25-number repertoire that reached beyond the well-known cities of Gdansk, Moscow, Odessa, and Warsaw. Music ranged from Wayne Hooper's "The Greatest Want of the World" to American Spirituals and Russian folk tunes. Dr. Robertson and the singers found an obvious interest in religion on the part of the younger generation and enjoyed visiting with the young people after concerts. "Many youth were eager to practice their English," Dr. Robertson reported.

Other noticeable changes included more stylish and colorful clothing and attractive hair styles. The May celebration of VE Day which the group attended in Red Square was particularly impressive. Rather than merely red flags for decorations as five years ago, electrified decorations were lavishly on view.

Die Meistersinger auditioned in New Jersey with Friendship Ambassadors who made arrangements for the tour and funded part of the expenses. Members of the group wrote letters, gave concerts, and sponsored activities to raise additional money.

The most treasured gift Dr. Robertson received was the five Adventist hymnals church officials sent back with him. On the next visit he hopes to include Russian hymns on the musical agenda. ■

An Expanding Business

VM Bakery Keeps 20 Busy

The VM Bakery is making a lot of dough these days. As much as 2,500 pounds of it in a single day!

A thousand to fifteen hundred loaves are produced daily for Tree of Life and shipped frozen by tractor-trailor load for distribution throughout the southeast. This accounts for about half of a day's production.

Students at the college cafeteria, the Campus Kitchen, and KR's Place are also major consumers of the bread and rolls baked fresh six days a week. Those who go down the road to Puzzles Pizza or Stacey's Buffet will still find VM Bakery products on their menu. Each year hundreds of parents order birthday cakes for delivery to students on campus.

Village Market customers seem to gravitate toward the far end of the store where breads fill a 20-foot display wall and other goodies continually replenish a large new glass showcase.

Patrons of the Pure and Simple health food store in Cleveland, Tenn., buy bread baked at Southern College. Senior citizens at Graysville Nursing Home enjoy the nutritious freshness of bread from the VM Bakery. Sometimes an order comes in for UPS delivery elsewhere.

"We're even making doughnuts for the canteen which serves McKee Baking Company employees," says the busy baker and manager, Roy Dingle, with a grin.

His monthly recipe: ten tons of flour, the equivalent of 1,800 pounds of compressed yeast, two barrels of honey, two barrels of molasses—for starters. Though bread is the basic product, about 80 different items are created virtually "from scratch." Specialty items, including huge wedding cakes, show baking to be an art as well as a science.

By avoiding mixes, Mr. Dingle says he can offer superior quality at lower cost. It takes some work—a shift and a half a day. Nobody loafs around. He himself is routinely at the bakery by 2 a.m. to get things rising. Four other full-time employees and about 15 students assist him.

Randy Graham, full-time baker, and Sherry Moore, student, make turnovers.

"To keep up with everything—inventory, cost control, recipe proportions—we've just gotten a computer with dual disk drives and a hard drive," reports Mr. Dingle. Last semester he became a student again, enrolling for Micro Tools, a three-hour class. "Jim Huenergardt, a computer science major who graduated in May, was employed part-time this past semester to help us with the specialized programming we need."

Though equipment and methods may change, any way you slice it, bread remains important to eating, earning, and learning at Southern. ■

Mark Houghton, a student, adds another 50 pounds of flour.

Roy Dingle, bakery manager, removes fresh-baked loaves from the oven. The bakery is one of five commercial auxiliaries at Southern College where students can earn and learn.

Former CBS Head Among Lecturers Scheduled for Coming Season

Southern College recognizes the positive influence that guest lecturers can have on both students and members of the surrounding community.

In addition to two well-established series directed toward nursing and business students, the President's Lecture Series and the Staley Christian Scholars Lecture Series are scheduled to stimulate the thinking of all students.

Former President of CBS News Fred Friendly will visit Southern's campus on October 13 as part of the President's Lecture Series. An assembly at 10:30 a.m. and a 7:30 p.m. panel discussion are scheduled.

Mr. Friendly is the leading authority on the social responsibility of major business, political, and media institutions of our constitutional democracy. An expert on broadcast journalism, Mr. Friendly produced the award-winning television series, "The Constitution: That Delicate Balance." He innovated seminars encouraging communication between the news media and other sectors of society. His subject will be "The 200th Anniversary of the U.S. Constitution."

Every year the nursing department presents nationally recognized experts through the Florence Oliver Anderson Nursing Series. The academic administration coordinates the visit of one eminent speaker each fall and spring semester for the President's Lecture Series. In the spring the Staley Christian Scholars Lecture Series sponsors a speaker with a spiritual message. For the 17th year running, the E. A. Anderson Lecture Series will bring about ten speakers to campus during second semester to enrich student understanding of the business world.

Among the six lectures and workshops in the nursing series is one planned for Homecoming '87 so that a wider group of nurses may attend. On Friday afternoon, October 30, Alice E. Smith will discuss "Brains, Brawn, and Imagination." Retired from service as an associate director of the health department for the SDA Church, Miss Smith is active in conducting workshops and consulting.

Staley lecturer Walter C. Kaiser, Jr., will speak for the student assembly on March 24. He is a professor of Semitic languages and Old Testament at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Deerfield, Ill. ■

Million Dollars for Scholarships Being Sought in Chattanooga

The Downtown Campaign to bring in $1 million for endowment from businesses, foundations, and other donors in the Greater Chattanooga area is under way.

"The $1 million to be raised is a part of the $10 million Century II Scholarship Endowment program," explained William H. Taylor, director of the Downtown Campaign and assistant to the president. "Income from the endowment will be used to assist worthy, hard-working students at Southern with their school expenses," he added.

Pledges now stand at $6.6 million, according to Mr. Taylor. Of that total, $4 million cash has already come in and is now invested with a current yield of 8.5 percent. In the past year this income provided monetary help for over 250 students.

Dr. Jack McClarty, vice president for development, and Mr. Taylor have personally presented proposals to numerous foundations and larger prospective donors in recent weeks. Several have already responded in the affirmative, but not with specific amounts.

Though the Downtown Campaign has just started, $167,000 has been pledged, a good share of it in cash.

A Downtown Advisory Group has met with college officials on two occasions, contributing suggestions for the campaign and setting money and time targets. ■

Pictured members of the advisory group are: William J. Hulsey, president, Collegedale Casework, Inc.; Dr. McClarty; John Stophel, attorney at law, Stophel & Stophel; Robert Sudderth, president, American National Bank & Trust, Co.; Don Sahly, president, Southern College; John Guerry, president, First Federal Savings & Loan; Joe Decosimo, president, Joseph Decosimo & Company, CPA's; and R. Robert Philp, president, First Tennessee Bank. Other members not pictured include: Richard Brock, president, Richmar, Inc.; George Clark, Jr., president, Pioneer Bank; Charles Fleming, president, Collegedale Interiors; Carey Hanlin, president & CEO, Provident Life & Accident Insurance Co.; Ellsworth McKee, president, McKee Baking Company; O. D. McKee, board chairman, McKee Baking Company; Dow Mims, president, Fund Raising Associates; Scotty Probasco, board chairman, American National Bank & Trust Co.; Kenneth Spears, vice president for finance, Southern College; William Taylor; and Spencer Wright, president, Spencer Wright Industries.

■ Kimberly Wygal Arellano will join the Department of Business and Office Adminstration this fall as an assistant professor. She will be teaching accounting, business law, and tax classes.

While pursuing her accounting degree at Southern College in 1979, Mrs. Arellano began working in the audit department of McKee Baking Company. She later became an operations and EDP auditor for the organization.

Mrs. Arellano completed her master of accountancy degree at the University of Oklahoma in 1985 with emphasis in federal taxation compliance. She received high evaluations while teaching accounting classes for the Oklahoma institution.

A member of the Institute of Internal Auditors, Mrs. Arellano was named "Member of the Year" for 1986-87. She and her husband, Tim, an attorney, reside in Chattanooga.

■ Former student Doug Walter is the new general manager of FM90.5 WSMC. He graduated from Southern in 1984 with a double major in radio/TV/film and journalism.

His association with the station began while he was a student production manager. He became studio engineer after completing his degrees. Mr. Walter helped design the Brock Hall studio for the 100,000-watt station. It first aired from its new location on July 26, 1985.

When he attended Southern College, Mr. Walter was involved in a promotional campaign for the Friendship Singers. He also produced Strawberry Festival, an annual Student Association multi-media production. He was house mix engineer for the college stage plays, Harvest Celebration, Inc., and the Maranatha Singers.

Mr. Walter's wife, Samantha, is an elementary teacher, and they live in the Collegedale area. He will teach a radio station operations course this fall for the Department of Journalism and Communication.

■ The Department of English at Southern College welcomes associate professor John Keyes. He will be teaching college composition, Biblical literature, and public speaking classes.

Mr. Keyes holds a specialist in education degree in English from George Peabody College for Teachers, as well as master of library science, master of arts of teaching, and master of arts (speech) degrees. In addition he is certified in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL).

Prior to coming to Southern, Mr. Keyes chaired the department of general studies at Southeast Asia Union College located in the Republic of Singapore. He has been on the faculty at Far Eastern Academy, Singapore, and Blue Mountain Academy in Pennsylvania.

He and his wife, Barbara, have two daughters, Beverly and Bonnie.

■ Southern's Department of Journalism and Communication has a new assistant professor. Ronald Smith completed his master of education degree at Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C., and has a journalism degree (summa cum laude) from Boston University.

Mr. Smith worked for the New York Times Regional Newspaper Group in Sarasota, Fla., and Spartanburg. He edited Business Monday, a magazine he developed, and was also a reporter for newspapers in Manchester, N.H., and Bradenton, Fla.

As a federal grants coordinator for the city of Bradenton, Mr. Smith researched availability of funds and handled more than $1.5 million in grants.

His wife is the former Jean Herman, and their daughter, Alexandria, is almost 5. Mr. Smith is replacing Frances Andrews who retired after a 38-year teaching career.

■ Dean Kinsey has been appointed chairman for Adult Studies and Special Programs and director of Continuing Education upon the return of Dr. Marvin Robertson to full-time service as chair of the Music Department. The department is housed in the Conference Center at Southern College, the annex of Thatcher Hall.

Doug Walter is now manager of FM90.5 WSMC, "The Classic Experience." In the past year the station has adopted a 24-hour-a-day broadcasting schedule.

■ Tom Glander, a senior public relations major, provided coverage of President Reagan's May 19 visit to Chattanooga for the 300-station National Public Radio (NPR) network. His report of the President's airport arrival and subsequent address to high school seniors resulted in 50 seconds' coverage on "Morning Edition" and two and half minutes on "All Things Considered."

An announcer for FM 90.5 WSMC, Tom recently narrated "Generation of Hope," a half-hour documentary produced by WTCI-TV, and recorded a public service announcement aired by WTCI during National Teacher Awareness Week.

■ Jeanette Stepanske has been awarded a doctor of education degree by the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Dr. Stepanske's dissertation was "An Analysis of Elementary Social Studies Methods Courses in Colleges and Universities in Tennessee and Selected Institutions Outside of Tennessee."

■ During meetings of the Southeastern Council of Latin American Studies held this spring in Mexico, Floyd Greenleaf presented a paper treating diplomatic aspects of the Mexican Revolution. A paper he presented for the same organization a year ago appears in the 1987 edition of the Annals, a publication of six selected papers from the annual conference. Dr. Greenleaf is one of more than a dozen faculty members who have been recommended this past school year by the faculty affairs committee for honoraria recognizing such scholarly activity.

■ Sharon Engel, formerly an associate dean, is now the head dean for the women's residence hall. She joined the staff at Southern in July, 1986.

Mrs. Engel previously deaned at Garden State Academy in New Jersey, Ozark Adventist Academy in Arkansas, and Sunnydale Academy in Missouri. Her daughter, Robin, works for Congressman Miller in Washington, D.C., and her son, Richard, will enroll as a freshman at Southern College.

Kassy Krause has accepted the position of associate dean. Miss Krause graduated from Southern in 1983 with a degree in office administration and has worked as a secretary for McKee Baking Company. Last year she voluntarily assisted the Thatcher deans in the evenings. Her family lives in the Collegedale area.

Lydia Rose will be Thatcher's assistant dean. She graduated from Oakwood College in Huntsville, Ala., with a communications degree in 1985. She came to Collegedale from Philadelphia and has worked as an administrative secretary in the Public Relations Office of the college since November. Her husband, Carlton, is studying theology and math at Southern while working at McKee Baking Company, and they have a two-year-old son, Kenneth.

Lydia Rose

■ Diane Fletcher, associate professor of home economics, has successfully defended her doctoral dissertation, "A Philosophical Analysis of the American Home Economics Association's Response to Family-Related Societal Concerns from 1959 to 1984." She received her Ed.D. in home economics education from Texas Woman's University in August.

Officers Chosen For New SA Year

Korff

Malone

Larrabee

Willett

Reid

Morton

Waldrop

DiDomenico

Huenergardt

Krause

Renou Korff, 22, a junior accounting major from South Africa, is the new Student Association president for 1987-88.

Students elected to serve on Korff's executive committee in various positions are: Jimmy Malone, vice president, senior, biology; Jody Larrabee, social vice president, junior, business management; Greg Willett, treasurer, junior, business administration. Jennifer Reid, senior, public relations, will be SA secretary for a second year. Lynford Morton, senior, communications—radio/TV/film, was elected to handle SA public relations.

Also, in creative positions: Mark Waldrop, Southern Memories editor, sophomore, accounting; Keith DiDomenico, Joker editor, sophomore, religion; Jim Huenergardt, Accent editor, who is working on a B.A. in public relations after receiving a B.S. in computer science in May; and Keith Krause, Strawberry Festival director, senior, accounting.

"One purpose of having an SA is to provide a liaison between the student body and college administration," says K. R. Davis, dean of students and SA sponsor. The SA is responsible for specific activities on campus such as banquets, festivals, and Saturday night events. The SA also acts as a voice for the student body, and provides opportunity for leadership training.

Among plans for the new year are a series of SC Pep Days.

THE CONFERENCE CENTER has hosted a variety of workshops and programs this summer.

After Southern's May graduation, 1,140 retired Seventh-day Adventist workers attended the National Retired Workers Convocation sponsored by the General Conference. The Southern Union Education Committee assembled on campus in late May. Afterwards the Conference Center facilities were used by the Georgia-Cumberland Conference for camp meeting, an annual campus event.

In June an organ workshop was held on the college campus. The Conference Center received positive letters from the young guests in the Hanover (Germany) Boys' Choir. The boys considered Collegedale "next to heaven, except for home," according to Helen Bledsoe, staff supervisor. Mrs. Bledsoe said the organ workshop brought "some of the most delightful guests we've ever had."

Even such diverse groups as baton twirlers and Friends find the college setting and facilities favorable for annual gatherings and repeatedly visit the campus. The Committee of 100 is backing a number of improvements to be made in the Conference Center during the coming year.

A TOWER MOVE FOR WSMC FM90.5 has been authorized by the board of trustees at Southern College. The FCC is requiring radio stations to increase tower heights to 983 feet above the average terrain. WSMC's tower is only 500 feet above average terrain and cannot be raised in its present White Oak Mountain position which lies in the path of Lovell Field.

Better reception will be one positive factor resulting from the tower move. Pockets of multi-path in downtown Chattanooga where the WSMC frequency phases in and out will be eliminated. Coverage points will increase when the tower is reassembled on Walden's Ridge, Signal Mountain. Areas in western North Carolina, northern Georgia, northeastern Alabama, and sections north towards Nashville will have the new option of tuning in the college station. Once the move has been completed, signals will be transmitted by microwave directly from Brock Hall to the new Signal Mountain location.

According to Gerald Peel, WSMC's director of development, $130,000 will cover the cost of purchasing the land site, moving the tower, and replacing equipment such as the transmitter. Dr. Jack McClarty and the Development Office of the college are coordinating the fund raising. Approximately $40,000 has been raised to date.

Southern's station recently received a $5,500 grant from the Hamilton County Tourist Development Agency. Funds will be used to record and make available local classical concerts to 300 stations through National Public Radio via satellite. Three recordings of the Anton Heiller organ in the Collegedale SDA Church were sent previously for broadcast in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

THE CAMPUS SHOP and the Adventist Book Center have switched store locations in the Fleming Plaza on Southern's campus. The Industrial Board voted the June swap which will increase rental income from the ABC and reduce overhead expenses by almost half for the Campus Shop.

Additional space was made available in the ABC's new facility for handling textbook distribution to schools throughout the Georgia-Cumberland Conference. With the exceptions of toys and baby clothes, the Campus Shop's entire line remains after assistance from a professional store planner. A grand opening was planned for Sunday, July 26, when students were registering for the fourth summer session. Regular Sunday hours are now noon to 5 p.m.

IMPROVEMENTS IN BOTH RESIDENCE HALLS have been completed for the fall session. Talge recarpeted the halls on first and second floors and some rooms on third floor. The basement floor has been retiled. The lobby at Thatcher has new carpet and wallpaper and will also have new furniture. The first floor hall and 25 rooms are also recarpeted.

Newsroom Lab Set Up for Journalism Classes

Ten Kaypro computers and six printers are now set up in Brock Hall for use in writing and editing classes. The computer equipment was donated to the Department of Journalism and Communication by alumnus Cecil Coffey, president and board chairman of Coffey Communications, Inc. Here Jo-Anne Stevenson, student, gets an assist from a new journalism faculty member, Ron Smith.

The new laboratory will enable communication students to learn in what teachers Dr. C. A. (Bill) Oliphant and Mr. Smith hope will be a near-replica of a city newsroom in support of the campus newspaper.

Edwin M. Shafer, '68, has been elected vice president of the Bryan Memorial Hospital Foundation in Lincoln, Neb. He will also continue as director of development and public relations for the hospital. The foundation is currently involved in a $500,000 major gifts campaign and a $20 million endowment campaign. Ed and his wife, Judy (Silverstein), have three children: Michael, 16; Russell, 14; and Heather, 10.

Harold Lloyd Walker, '62, graduated in 1978 from the University of Texas with a Ph.D. in communication. He taught speech there from 1969-1979. He presently lives in Cave Spring, Ga., where he owns and operates a plastics plant. He also has a classic car business and a rental property business.

Randolph Roy Allen, '77, has moved to Little Creek Academy this summer. He was a math teacher at the academy at Weimar, Calif. He and his wife, Vicki (Avery), '75, have two sons, ages 10 and 6. They are expecting their third child in August.

Johannes M. Boehme II, '74, formerly of Asheville, N.C., is now the assistant professor of radiology at Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C. He received his master's degree in business administration from Wake Forest University's Babcock School of Management. Not long ago he coauthored an article in Applied Radiology on information management systems.

Deanna Brown, '78, is playing her horn with the St. George Horns, the Wright State Orchestra, and the Miami Valley Horn Club. She is also ringing hand bells in two choirs. Deanna works as a physical therapist at Sycamore Hospital/Kettering Medical Center. Deanna plans to go back to school in the fall for a master's in elementary education.

George V. DeLand, '78, is a pediatrics resident at Loma Linda University Medical Center. He received an award for "outstanding academic achievement and compassionate patient care."

Gary Gryte, '70, and his family will be moving to Beltsville, Md. from St. Cloud, Fla., where he will be the youth pastor. He and his wife, Ladonna, have three children: Greg, Gavin, and Crystal.

Naomi (Strickland) Gustafson, '71, lives in Canaan, Maine, where she works part-time in the OB unit of a nearby hospital. Her husband, David, graduated from the University of Maine in '86 with a B.S. degree in elementary education. They have four children: Katrina, 12; Kara, 10; Kristi, 5; and David, 2.

Barbara Lynn (Burns) Haskell, '78, is currently living in Sanford, Fla. She is divorced, but still goes by the name Haskell. Barbara is working at Florida Hospital, Altamonte, as a surgical nurse. She has two children, Lauren, 5,and Christopher, 3.

David Haugen, '78, and his wife Nancy (Smith), '81, are living in Houma, Louisiana. Dave is director of finance at Terrebonne General Medical Center, and Nancy is working in ICU after completing her master's degree at Louisiana State University. They have one child, Jeffery, three years old, and another due in October.

Herbert H. Henderson, '75, graduated on May 17 from the University of Health Sciences, College of Osteopathic Medicine, in Kansas City, Mo., with a doctor of osteopathy degree. He is married to Mar-Lou Jean (White), and they have two children, Tyler and Tara. Herbert will serve a one-year internship at Loma Linda University Hospital in the department of pediatrics.

Marion Moses, former employee '70-'75, lives in Groveland, Fla., with his wife. He is a massage therapist at the Tip-Top Therapy Center.

Dennis Neubrander, '72, is practicing dentistry in Longwood, Fla. His wife, Dorothy, is also a dentist. They have two sons, Tim and Michael.

Donna (Prelog) Roberts, '70, received a special recognition award in the field of marketing earlier this year from the Adventist Health System/US. As product manager for the Special Addition Maternity Club at Takoma Adventist Hospital in Greeneville, Tenn., Donna had the unique priviledge of working with the first hospital to implement the national maternity product line. She received the award for innovation in product implementation and refinements to the program as it continues to be produced in other hospitals. Donna and her husband, Ronnie, reside in eastern Tennessee with their three children: Robin, 16, Bridgett, 12, and Jeff, 10.

Merwin Stewart, '76, lives in Boise, Idaho. He works for Pacific Press and is looking for talented art students or freelancing alumni to submit illustration samples that can be kept on file at Pacific Press, 1350 North Kings Rd., Nampa, ID 83687.

Carol J. Wickham, '73, has been living in Chicago for about a year and is working as chief accountant at Hyde Park Hospital. She misses living in the south and being around friends.

Alberta (Pumphrey) Wecker, '70, her husband, Barry, and their four children have been missionaries in Africa for the past six years. The first four were spent in Rwanda; the last two in Abidjan, Cote d'Ivoire, where Barry has been the director of the Health and Temperance Department of the African-Indian Ocean Division. They will be coming back home this summer—most likely settling in Nova Scotia.

Susan (Gardner) Whitsett, '70, recently moved to Nashville, Tenn. where her husband, George, is pastoring the Bordeaux church. Susan is a registered nurse working staff relief and private duty for Nashville's medical personnel pool.

Sandy (Reasner) Williams, '77, has been teaching at Burton Adventist Academy, Arlington, Texas, for the past three years. Her husband, Dan, who attended Southern in '69 and '72, began teaching at Columbia Union College in December. Sandy joined him when school was out. They have a daughter, Elizabeth, 8.

Phil Worley, '76, and his wife, Debbie (Howard), '75, are delighted to announce the birth of their daughter, Joyelle Marie (named after her grandmothers) born April 11. Three and a half year old Melissa loves her baby sister. The Worleys live in Fountain, Colo.

Those Who Gave, Fiscal Year 1986-87

With sincere appreciation, Southern College students, faculty, and staff extend thanks to each donor.

Current donors who have given within the past three fiscal years (between July 1, 1984, and June 30, 1987) are listed. Cumulative contributions of record determine gift club placement.

Although every effort has been made for accurate listings, names may be misspelled, accidentally omitted, or misplaced. Please accept our apologies for errors and inform the Development Office so that records can be corrected.

This year's grand total of monetary gifts and gifts-in-kind from alumni and friends exceeded $1.7 million. That total includes $177,400 from alumni participants in the Business Executives' Challenge to Alumni (BECA). Gifts given since June 30 are a part of the 1987-88 annual fund and will be reported after this fiscal year.

These gifts give worthy students financial support. At the same time the quality of education for all Southern students is enhanced through equipment purchases and other special projects not covered in the normal operating budget.

Contributions are welcomed at any time during the year by the Development Office and are promptly receipted.

Alumni Enjoy Retired Workers' Meet

Participants in the Retired Workers' Convocation held on the campus in May attended devotional-oriented, church-related meetings and toured Chattanooga attractions and the Great Smoky Mountains. Retirees who had worked together in various regions of the world met in smaller groups to become reacquainted. The Southern College Alumni Association held a buffet supper, pictured, in the Garden of Prayer for the 125 alumni who attended the convocation. Six years ago the first North American convocation was conducted on the Southern College campus.

Alumni Figure in City Political Scene

A plaque of appreciation for his services to the City of Collegedale was presented to Dr. Dewitt Bowen when he recently retired as vice mayor. A reception was held in Wright Hall as citizens expressed their personal appreciation to him.

Since the City of Collegedale was chartered in 1968, Dr. Bowen has served on the Council as mayor for two terms, vice-mayor, and city commissioner. Residents credit him with initiating a fiscally responsible program for the city.

The first mayor was Fred Fuller, '51 to '56, followed by Dr. Bowen, '49, Jan Rushing, '58, and currently Dr. Wayne VandeVere, chairman of the Business Administration Department. It is of interest to note that all of the current commissioners have been connected with Southern College as student, faculty, or staff members. Present commissioners are: Vice Mayor Ken Spears, '66, vice president for finance; C. W. (Skip) McCandless, director of custodial service; and former college staff members Nancy Thiel, '66 to '67, and Jan Rushing. Additional members and former students are Glenn McColpin, '57, city attorney; Donna Taylor, '70, city recorder; and Lee Holland, '73, city manager.

Alumnus Named Chattanooga's Manager of Year

After 53 years in the cookie business, O. D. McKee received the 1987 Chattanooga ea Manager of the Year award in June. The founder and chairman of McKee aking Company, pictured with his wife, Ruth, was honored by area businessmen ring a luncheon.

The award was presented in conjunction with the national observance of Man-ement Week. McKee was "praised for his achievements and contributions to the amilton County area where he has built a manufacturing empire," according to a cal paper. Mr. McKee, an alumnus, is an honorary member of the Southern College oard of Trustees.

The two McKee plants in Collegedale employ more than 2,100 people, including any Southern College students, and service 41 states. A third plant is located in entry, Ark., while plans are pending for a fourth operation in Virginia. Each work day million Little Debbie snack cakes are baked by the company.

College Press Facilities Expand

The College Press is enjoying an improved office environment after its administrative offices were moved to a brick building adjacent to the main plant. Formerly part of the book bindery, the newly renovated area also houses the typesetting, proofreading, and art departments. The previous office space will be used for expansion of the litho-prep department.

General manager Allen Olsen, pictured, employs about thirty regular employees and five college students. Along with Southern College publications, the Press prints for customers such as the Southern Union, the General Conference, and other clients nationwide. Gross sales were up $230,000 this past fiscal year, exceeding $1.35 million.

Dinner Concert Helps With Scholarships

Guests experienced a taste of the Early South at the annual Symphony Dinner Concert held on April 19 in the college's dining room. An old-fashioned garden setting and Southern-type menu contributed to the atmosphere.

The Southern College Symphony Orchestra performed the theme from "Gone with the Wind," Strauss waltzes, music of Bach and Mozart, and a medley from the "Big Band Era." Orlo Gilbert, right, was honored for 20 years of conducting the orchestra. The 340 guests sang "Happy Anniversary" while a large cake was carried in.

Pauline Pierson, left, Symphony Guild president and dinner coordinator, said the two main purposes of the dinner concert are to raise scholarship funds for orchestra members and create friends and positive relations with the Chattanooga community. "This event is growing more popular each year with residents from the surrounding area," Mrs. Pierson states. Appreciative letters were received from businessmen who consider Southern College an asset to the Chattanooga area. One $2,000 donor later called to pledge support for future orchestra tours and request a special local concert.

An orchestra-organ concert performance was shown on WDSI-TV Channel 61, Sunday, April 12, from 1 p.m. until approximately 2:20 p.m. Five one-minute television spots of the college were also aired during the telecast.

WATCH FOR IT!

SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED TO HONOR K. R. DAVIS

"A man who goes beyond the call of duty" is being recognized by a scholarship set up by a couple of alumni.

The anonymous donors hope that their seed money will grow with gifts from other alumni and friends whose lives have felt the warm influence of K. R. Davis as dean, teacher, recruiter, counselor, and friend. Officially retired, but currently serving as vice president for student affairs, K. R. Davis has been part of the Southern College scene for 24 years.

Those wishing to add to the K. R. Davis Scholarship Fund should so indicate when sending their gift to the Development Office.

Drive With Tennessee Plates?

Cultural license plates promoting colleges and universities in the state of Tennessee were created by the legislature on July 1, 1987.

Study is being given to a Southern College plate. It would cost an extra $25 (at the time of order) plus regular fees (when procured) and would be available for annual issue in March.

One hundred orders must be guaranteed to the state by September 30 if Southern College is to participate. Orders beyond that number would need to be in Nashville by November 30.

Please write the Public Relations Office, Southern College, Collegedale, TN 37315-0370 or call (615) 238-2839 BY SEPTEMBER 20 if you want an application.

Participation in the program this year depends on sufficient interest.

Attention: Florida Alumni

A new alumni chapter has been organized in the Greater Orlando area. A September lake picnic and a January Sunday brunch are being planned.

Chapter president Sylvia (Fowler) Marchant, '63, at (305) 629-4737, or vice president Vicki (Johnson) McDonald, '78 at (305) 896-7485 may be contacted for more information.

TAKE A LOOK!

A new video "Presenting Southern College" has just been produced by Harvest Media. You will want to see it!

Copies are available for loan to alumni, church, and school groups without charge. Individuals are also welcome to borrow a copy for personal viewing but are asked to make a $10 refundable deposit.

Please contact: Admissions Office, Southern College, Collegedale, TN 37315-0370 or (615) 238-2844.

At Rest

PAUL ELMORE QUIMBY, 92, former Southern College religion department chairman and Adventist pioneer missionary to China, died June 13, 1987, in Deer Park, Calif.

Born July 20, 1894, in Vermont, Quimby was one of nine children of Gilmer and Ella Quimby. He received bachelor degrees (theology and education) from Emmanuel Missionary College (Andrews) in 1921 and 1924. He married Mae Ordelia Henise in 1921.

The Quimbys went as missionaries to China in 1924. Although Paul worked at the Adventist China Training Institute during his years in the country, he was "loaned" by the General Conference to the Chinese government, then under the leadership of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek. One of a few foreigners employed by the government, Paul supervised several government schools from 1933 to 1937. The book Yankee on the Yangtze recounts some of the Quimbys' experiences.

During furloughs, Paul pursue graduate studies at the University c Southern California where he r ceived an M.A. and a Ph.D., both i history.

When 1939 conditions in Chin were not conducive to the Quimby return, Dr. Quimby became head c the department of religion at Soutl ern Junior College in Tennesse (1940-1943). He held the same pos tion at Pacific Union College fror 1943-46. The Quimbys returned t China in 1946, but were able to sta only three years. They returned t PUC where he again taught, eve after his 1960 retirement. He au thored several books and specialize syllabi and a large number of art cles.

Survivors include his wife, Mae and a brother, Harvey T. Quimby. Th Quimbys' only child, Donavo Henise Quimby, died in 1965.
